The church bells were tolled and there were memoriol services held in Presbyterian and Methodist churches. In the latter Mr. S. C. Cason, by special request of the Laterary club, read an essay on "Mr. Davisand his rise and fall of the Confederate Government," It was a thoroughly prepared paper, reviewing Mr. Davis from his birth to the last days of his life, entering fully into all the details of political career and dwelling with great fervor and eloquence upon those strong Southern political career and dwelling with great fervor and eloquence upon those strong Southern principles for which he fought and died a political death, and which endeared him to all who love the true, the noble and the brave Statesburg says, fittingly in her tribute to Mr. Davis. and that Abbeville is at last to be on a greater iron highway from east to west. We will then look to new trade centres and new lines of travel. But with all the possibilities in store for Abbeville, she must work out her own destiny. The raitroad of itself will not build a town. The building of a city is left with the people, and they must build it. Our advantages and our opportunities will avail nothing without the individual effort, and concentrated action of the people themselves. The question then is, what are they going to The question then is, what are they going t do to draw business and capital to the town Are they going to put forth renewed energy to succeed, each in his own chosen line or pro-

The Abbeville Oil Mill.

The machinery of the Abbeville Oil Mill is now running smoothly and satisfactorialy to the stockholders and managers. The first oil was made last Thursday, since which time the work has been going on regularly. Very little or no trouble was experienced in setting the machinery to going. The making of oil is becoming to be an important industry, and we presume the time is not distant when oi mills will be put up at all important railroad towns. We learn that the mills at Ninety-Six and Greenwood are doing well. If our friends at McCormick, Donalds, and Lowndesvillewould invest in similar enterpreses they would be public benefactors, and would no doubt reap a handsome dividend from their investment.

Memorial Services.

S. C. Cason, Esq., read an essay in the Methodist Church last Wednesday on Jeffersonbeing a historical sketch of the great chieftain's lite and death.

In the Presbyterian Church the pastor, Rev.
J. Lowrie Wilson, delivered an eulogy on the life and character of the deceased, comparing, or running the parallel of Moses and the chitdren of Israel in the wilderness, with Mr. Davis's leadership of the Southern people.

A Mean Act.

Miles Cole, a colored citizen living near Abbeville village, met with a serious loss last Thursday night. Some one broke open his his stable, and with a knife or other sharp instrument, cut one of the legs of his animal, so as to disable it. The horse was valued at $125. A second visit to the "Village in the Pines," has demonstrated the accuracy of my statement in my last note, that Mr. Hallyburton, Railroud contractor on the G., C. & N. Road, is a veteran in the work, and means business. Indeed, I was surprised that so much had been accomplished in so short a time. There is heavy work, and plenty of it, near the river, involving the excavation of an immense cut, both as to length and depth. The earth from this cut is to be drawn for a great distance to fill the depressed surface near the river, and while the work necessarily grows slowly, it progresses satisfactorily both to the employer, and the employed.

Rock has been struck in several places which will somewhat retard the work, but onward is the word, and on they go. A second visit to the "Village in the Pines,

We have just returned from a visit to the Winthrop Training School for teachers, pleanily located in this city. Never have we been more favorably impressed with school work than we were to-day. It was our pleast use to visit several school rooms filted with busy workers. These rooms were well supplied with the latest charts, globes, maps and other school apparatus. The walls of each room were tastefully decorated with mottoes, framed pictures and also with beautiful designs drawn on blackboards. Teachers and pupils alike were deeply interested in their paying some attention to the Abbeville pupils alike were deeply interested in their branch, for which the public are grateful, some time ago, the track for severed miles one moment regret the day it entered any or was faild with steel rails, and now the track the school rooms of the Winthrop Training ordered tracks to the school rooms.

The Glory of the United States of America.

The following very eloquent words are from that great philanthropist and eminent scholar, Elihu Burritt. They he committee on ways and means in are well worthy of the deep considerabehalf of the petition for recognition tion of every person in our country and especially so at the present time.

J. H. "There is but one path to glory and Governor's recommendation, to fund greatness for this mighty and expanding union of Anglo-Saxon Republics, Wise, in his argument, maintained and that is the path of peace. The that the bonds were a legal issue; that the bonds were a legal issue; that the bonds were a legal issue; that bubble of military glory has long ago the agent, by Act of the Legislature, burst with ruin upon the habitations 53.071 90 was authorized to pledge the funds for 125,750 00 State purposes; that the State failed to protect these loans when due; that they the trail of the phantom. Doing Things Well.

The young person nowadays who knows how to do one thing thoroughly well, who is determined to do it better, if possible, than anybody else, is more D. M. > NEVER TAKE A LADY'S ARM .-"The question is often put to me," said a lady, whose opinion in matters of etiquette is wholly competent, "whether it is ever permissible to take a lady's arm in acting as an escort on a promenade." Unhesitatingly and peremptorily, no. Not after nightfall, nor by daylight, nor at any other time. An invalid may lean on a young woman's arm; a grandfather, if he is infirm, may avail himself af a similar support, and a Broadway policeman seems to have acquired the right to propel his charge in petticoats across the thoroughfare by a grasp on the arm, but these are the only persons so privileged. For an acquaintance, a friend, or one who aspires to a still near er place, to take the arm of a young woman when walking with her on the public highway is inexcusable. You may be sure that nothing will so quick ly offend. To see a young woman pushed along, a little in front of her escort, by his clutch upon her reverses all preconceived ideas of gallantry. Offer her your arm young man, every time, and do not commit the offense of taking hers .- N. Y. Sun. PURVIS, Miss., December 14.-The
